"This roster of All-American players represents a stellar group of athletes," commented Robert Carpenter of Inside Lacrosse magazine. "The selection committee was comprised of some of the nation's most knowledgeable coaches and athletic professionals who were tasked with selecting a finite number of All-Americans from our pool of highly qualified and accomplished athletes. This roster embodies the best of the best, and we are confident that these players will make this a truly exciting and highly competitive event."

Athlete nominations were accepted from coaches and athletic directors via on-line submission at www.underarmourlacrosse.com through May 14th. Inside Lacrosse magazine organized and steered the selection committee in the processing of nominated athletes through a series of selection rounds which involved 500+ man hours researching the top players in the country. All-American players were judged and ultimately selected based on criteria established by the committee.
